VINO BIANCO / WHITE WINE
PRODUCT OF ITALY

An ancient peasant tradition, a tradition that lives on in the Italian countryside. The prolonged contact of the skins, first with the must, then with the wine, gives unexpected flavors and colors to a white grape wine. The skins release the substances contained in them, making the wine complex both on the nose and on the palate.

The result is a wine that goes well with the dishes of its homeland, such as fish, white meats, lamb or kid. For vegetarians they accompany the classic soups of Mediterranean cuisine.
